

Case Managers

Case managers:

- Gather information and connect students with campus and community resources.
- Provide consultation to faculty and staff regarding students of concern, help problem-solve situations involving students of concern and provide feedback to involved parties as needed.
- Conduct presentations and support other programming to inform students, faculty, staff and community members about recognizing and responding to students of concern.

OSSJA coordinates the Students of Concern Response Team (SCRT), an interdisciplinary team of professionals that manages situations involving students of concern who present with serious risk of harm to self or others.

Sometimes, different factors in our lives combine in such a way that we feel limited in our abilities to cope, believing that things will not improve no matter what. We may even think of harming ourselves or someone else as an answer.

At times like this, we need to reach out to those who can help us:

- Sort things out
- Get another perspective
- Identify other options
- Be safe

If you ever have the experience of feeling overwhelmed or that you can't go on, contact one of the resources listed on the inside of this card.

UC DAVIS Case Managers

Students may experience challenges and crises that interfere with their ability to be successful in the university environment.

UC Davis non-clinical case managers, based in the Office of Student Support and Judicial Affairs (OSSJA), are available to support and assist students.

Contact OSSJA if you notice a student having difficulties involving mental, emotional and personal well-being, and the case managers can ensure a coordinated response.

ANYONE can contact a case manager when they are concerned about a student.
